Lassen National Forest Lifts Fire Restrictions

Susanville, CA...Beginning Saturday, September 6th, fire restrictions will be lifted on the Lassen National Forest. "We have received an average of 1.64 inches of rain across the Forest since the beginning of August," said Larry Hood, Fire Fuels Specialist, "this has eased the conditions enough to allow us to lift all the restrictions."

Fire officials remind forest visitors that fire danger still exists, and to be cautious with all types of fires. Fuelwood gatherers will need to have their wood cutting permits, and an approved spark arrestor on their chainsaw, as well as a shovel nearby when cutting wood. Campers will need to have a campfire permit when camping in areas other than designated campgrounds, and to extinguish their campfires completely before leaving. Smokers are reminded to put out their cigarettes completely and deposit the butts in a fire safe container.

For more information contact your local Lassen National Forest Service office.
